"Jellerson Davis Monument, Confederate Veterans, Sons of Veterans, Daughters of the Confederacy, women of our Southern Memorial Associations (and in calling these names they represent every man, woman and child of our fair Southland, ver living). I ask you have we a to be called by these names, so long refuse to honor the one and only ent of the Southern Confederacy—son Davis? Each day that you negation to the world your recognition our chosen Executive and the cause of your chosen Executive and the cause he represented, is a repreach to you. We are handshaking (and I do not say this in bitterness) with those we once called our enemy. Our Confederate generals are wearing the uniform of a reunited country. Our Sons of Confederate Veterans are dy-ing in a foreign land, enrolled in the army of a reunited country. Our one and only mited country. Our one and only President of the Confederate States, plac-ed in this office by the southern people, died, a man without a country, and we, his people, have failed to do him honor. There is no use talking of the poverty of the South. Did the costly reunions of Richmond, Charleston and Louisville, given in honor of the Confederate Veterans, prove we were poor. I think not. Then, as chairman of Central Committee of Jefferson Davis Monument Association, I simply state the Daughters of the Confederacy have been requested by the United Confederate Veterans to erect this toolong-delayed monument. The confedera tion of Southern Memorial Societies-the women who (when the South was in pov-erty) with their own hands rescued from oblivion the graves of "our dead"-have offered to co-operate with them. Circulars by the thousands have been sent to Camps, Chapters and individuals. Therefore, I plead that you neglect your duty no long-er; respond at once to this call. If you are blessed with riches, send liberally; if too poor to send even a mite, tell it to some one who can send, and in a year the world will know we have not forgotten, and the reproach of having falled to honor the Southern Confederacy and her chosen rep-resentative, Jefferson Davis, will be taken from us, and a monument that we will not be ashamed of will be erected by the South "in loving memory."

POLITICS IN THE POLICE COUR

JUSTICE JOHN WAS OUTTALKED

A Flock of Buzzards in the Pen-John Hix Drowns His Sorrow in the Cap and Makes More Trouble With His Razor.

Politics were rife in the Police Court yesterday, and everybody with any "fluence" whatsoever was button-holed with a view of getting him to work on some member of the Council, who will organize Saturday night and hold in their hands the destinies of many minor officers.

The Great Dispenser came upon the bench looking as wiited as a cut flower without water, and languidly and feebly called for air before commencing the labors of the day. The trusty Sergeant handed him a fan and his life was

FIRE AND BRIMSTONE.

The Great Dispenser delivered a fire and brimstone sermon on lying, and, from the number of people he consigned to hell, you would think he was the Devil's own census-taker. He declared it was too hot to fool with niggers, and fined the lot $2.50 all around and sent them flocking to the pen. There they carried on high di-do's, and Polly Brown, the leader of the gang, was called back and fined $10 for disorder in court and given thirty days. Eddie Hix (a one-eyed black and shuf-FIRE AND BRIMSTONE. Eddie Hix ta one-eved black and shuffling bushman) beat Annie Hays, because she "wouldn't have him any more," and Eddie, who knows the law about hitting women, turned towards the pen, while the Great Dispenser was yet entering up a fine of $10 against him.

James Lewis (colored) came all the way from Tennessee, and was found monstrous near a chicken-house. He was given thirty minutes to leave town. John Hix (colored) lost his mother, and drowned his sorrow in drink, went home and got his razor, put it in his pocket, took a few more shorts of rum, and re-turned and carved his wife. The woman had a gaping wound on her arm, without surgical attention.

John said he was drunk and didn't know what he was doing, and the woman said she didn't want him locked up, as they had children to support.

Sent to a jury, the case would cost the State a hundred dollars, and the Great Dispenser put his head on one side, chewod his cud for a minute long, while you could hear his brain tick like the City Hall tower clock. Then he gave John a dose of razzle dazzle, fined him $10, and sent him to jail in default. Great is the Great Dis-HIVE A LICK.

New York, on or before January 1, 1901. This statement was made on a motion t discharge the receiver, recently appoint ed to take charge of the Richmond and Manchester road, to dissolve the injunction and to return the property to the Richmond Passenger and Power Company, the successors of the Richmond Kailway and Electric Company.

The Richmond Passenger and Power Company had as its counsel Messrs, Martin and Ainslie, A. B. Guigon, Christian & Christian and Leake & Carter, and Messrs.

Judge Leake made the opening state-ment to the court, and in doing so de-clared that the Passenger and Power Company stood ready to redeem the bonds at any time. They would also be prepar-ed to pay the interest on the bonds on July 1st, the time at which they became due, and to further show that the company was not insolvent, he declared that the bonds would be taken up at $1.050 cach, showing a certificate from the Merchants' Trust Company of New York, which bore

Mr. C. V. Meredith, in replying to Judge Leake, said that the purpose of the hear-ing was not that of removing the receiver, but to hear a motion for permis-sion to issue bonds to the extent of $20,000 for the maintenance, repairing and improving of the road.

had not taken advantage of the oppor that not taken advantage of the oppor-tunity given them to redeem the bonds and he questioned their right at this stage of the proceedings, while the case was in court, to pay these bonds. He, therefore, desired a sufficient amount of time to in-quire into the right of the company to do so, and to investigate the claims that they made in reference to the payment of the bonds. He asked the court to refuse the request made by the Passenger and Power Company.

NOT INSOLVENT. Mr. Frank Christian, for the Passenger and Power Company, replied to Mr. Meredith and endeavored to show that the court had a perfect right to discharge the re-ceiver, because the company clearly proved that it was not in a state of insolvency and was able to protect the property of the Richmond and Manchester and Electric Company and the Richmond Passenger and Power Company on June 27th, in which the statement was made in reference to their willingness to take up

The question as to a continuance, made by Mr. Meredith was objected to by Judge Leake, on the grounds that his clients were in condition to take up the bonds, were perfectly solvent and that they wanted the property restored at once so that necessary improvements could be made.

In passing upon the matter Judge Waddill said that he was not disposed to decide the matter without giving the receiver some time in which to make a reply, and by agreement Fulger Waddill say your by agreement Judge Waddill set day as the time for hearing the argument.

WEATHER STILL VERY HOT.

Thermometer Registered Ninety Four

"Is it hot enough for you?" is the question which has been asked ten thou-sand times in Richmond within the past three or four days. It was not enough for everybody yester-day, and, while the weather man is in deep ympathy with the sweltering masses, h has been unable to bring them any relief as yet. There must be something in the old adage that "all signs fail in dry weathr." for the thunder-storms and showers which have been predicted have failed to put in an appearance.

The mercury jumped back to its old quarters yesterday, and stood at 94 at 3 o'clock P .M. Electric fans and low-neck dresses were again much in evidence, and the fellow who didn't take his sweetheart for a street-car ride, and wind up the excursion

t an ice cream saloon, was simply "not cooler weather is moving in from the northwest, and that it will probably be felt here in a few days. The cool wave felt here in a few days. The cool wave made considerable headway yesterday, but it has a great distance to come, and is making its way south by easy stages, for fear of becoming over-heated The people seem to have stood the strain remarkably well. But few persons have been prostrated. They all seem to hope that the "night of agony" will not last much longer, and are bearing it bravely.

The forecast for to-day is, "Fair, southerly winds," and this would indicate that will be as hot as yesterday was, Hospital Notes.

Mr. John Beck, who was seriously in-jured by a fall two weeks ago, was discharged from the Virginia Hospital Thurs-day afternoon. Mr. Beck's recovery has been almost miraculous. Mr. Wills, of Fulton, who has been under
